Rural Women Veterans’ Use and Perception of Mental Health Services

Kathy Ingelse, DNP, PMHNP
Deborah Messecar, PhD, MPH
The following personal financial relationships with commercial interests relevant to this presentation existed during the past 12 months:

No Relationships to Disclose
Women Veterans

SHE SERVED
SO THAT WE COULD LIVE FREE
Purpose

• Examine barriers to mental health care for rural women veterans

• Provide descriptive data on a group of ten women veterans’ use and perception of mental health services in rural Oregon
Methods

- Participants
- Procedures
- Human Subjects
Interview Questions

- Use of services
- Perception of services
- Awareness of local services
- Demographic data
Findings

• Precipitating Event
• Supportive Peer
• Cultural Barriers to Care
  — Gender discrimination
  — Lack of caring
  — Stigma
Precipitating Event

- Some particular event or set of circumstances that precipitated seeking help in mental health.
- “Having a meltdown” which initiated use of services. “I didn’t know what was wrong with me but I was having a hard time keeping it together.”
- This event or series of events consisted of chronic sexual and gender harassment, or war zone trauma. This eventually led to their own “meltdown”.
Supportive Peer

• It wasn’t like you had any friends but a couple of the women I worked with in the unit said that I needed to go see someone, that they were worried about me. If it hadn’t been for someone noticing that I wasn’t acting normally, I probably never would have gone in.
Cultural Barriers to Care

• Gender discrimination

Yeah, it was definitely harder being a woman. You had to work harder than the guys and then you still got all this grief; constantly being told you were pathetic and women didn’t belong in the military.
Cultural Barriers to Care

• Lack of Caring

• I didn’t think they cared at all. They were just doing their job and never asked me about what the issue was. It was ok, but not what I needed. I felt like they just wanted to give me medications. I was numb on medications. I finally just quit going, quit the medications. It didn’t seem to make any difference anyway.
Cultural Barriers to Care

• Stigma

• No one in their right mind would go to get care! You were a marked target once you did. They just looked at you like you were weak. I went and got counseling which did help a little. I sure paid a price for going. I felt like it was going to be the same thing in the VA so I never checked things out.
Findings

- Demographic data
  - Army veterans
  - Age
  - Deployments
  - Service-connected disabilities
  - Mental Health related
Discussion

- Use of mental health services
- Perceptions of care
- Service-connected disabilities
Implications

- Women Veterans
- Healthcare providers
- Communities
Thank you

• Women veterans

• Jonas Center for Nursing and Veterans Healthcare
Questions

• ???
Selected References

